Parent-Teacher Conferences

All conferences will be virtual or by phone. Please make sure you are available so that you can find out how your child is doing. See tips below:

WHAT TO ASK AT A PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCE

1. How are my child's learning skills?

Ask how your child performs in class. Does he or she have trouble in any areas, like listening, writing, or reading? This can provide valuable insight into learning skills and habits your child may need to practice.

2. Does my child participate in class?

Kids who don't speak out in class may not do so because they are having difficulty understanding a subject. If the teacher notes your child isn't participating in the classroom, it's important to find out why this may be.

3. Is my child having any challenges?

If your child isn't giving his or her all in school, it's important to start figuring out why. It could be that he or she isn't understanding the material, is having a hard time staying focused, or even struggling to see the board.

4. What does my child excel at?

This question will help you and the teacher identify your child's strengths create a learning plan that suits these strengths. Take what works for your child and incorporate into other areas where he or she may be struggling.

5. How can we help at home?

Your child's teacher wants him or her to succeed and needs your help to achieve this. Show the teacher that you're willing to get involved by asking what sorts of routines or work you can do at home to help them improve.
